

It Takes A Professional

Carol Collins is one of Slifer Smith & Frampton's top producing Vail/Beaver Creek brokers and has been a top producer in her office. She has lived in the Vail Valley since 1969 and quickly developed a sense for real estate, buying vacant land on the Vail Golf Course where she now resides. Carol became a real estate broker in 1973. Her knowledge of Vail real estate grew with the town, hence she can answer questions relating to Vail's second homes, condominiums, permanent residences, and ranches, hence Carol was the broker for the exclusive Tower Residences at Lion Square in Lionshead, Vail Village Inn Phase II in Vail Village, and in Beaver Creek; The Custom Homes on Village Walk, Saddle Ridge, and The Fairways. She also participated as a Limited Partner in the developments of Eagle-Vail and Arrowhead.

Carol raised her two children here in the Vail Valley and has been active in community beginning with the very first Vail Gerald Ford Golf Invitational and education for children with learning disabilities. As a cancer survivor she became interested in supporting the local Shaw Cancer Center by organizing the Cancer Community Dinner in Vail for several years. Her personal interests besides her children and grandchildren involve the cultural venues and all the outdoor sports the Vail Valley has to offer, with a particular love for hiking. She also enjoys the privacy of her ranch land where she runs a cattle-leasing operation. Her office is located in the Beaver Creek Park Hyatt where she is a member of the Beaver Creek Club. Carol also has a home office in Vail where she is a member of the Vail Mountain Club.

Experiencing the Vail Valley grow from a small ski village to becoming a world class resort has given Carol the experience to help buyers and sellers with a menu of diverse dreams. Read about Carol in the documentary book Women of Vail.
